Friendliness.

What a world this would be if everybody were the enemy of every other body! It would be a realized hell. Again, what a world this would be if every one were the friend of every one! It would be heaven upon earth. Who is he that relishes the thought of having personal enemies? Such a one must be more than a stoic. It is natural for us to be friendly. How may we get them? Solomon says; "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly." In what manner should we show ourselves friendly in order to get many friends?

1. By not being too precise about formal rules of personal etiquette. There is such a thing as being too precise to be comfortable either for one's self or for others. The spirit of friendliness is sometimes killed by precision; for some people will not speak to others because they have not been honored with a polite introduction. Hence they resolve to be strangers forever for this reason. Now a personal and formal introduction has its proprieties and usages; but he who is determined to stand on the technicalities of a formal introduction in every case will not make much advancement in the act of cultivating a friendly disposition. Should a pastor pursue such a course his influence and usefulness would be greatly crippled.

2. Another way of getting many friends is by manifesting courteous conduct towards all classes of persons. Some persons are very friendly toward some classes of persons—the rich, the fashionable and the cultured. They are very friendly toward Assemblyman A, and Senator B. They lavish their smiles upon the aristocratic and render hearty salutations to the glittering "butterflies of society." But they will not condescend to say "Good morning" to the village blacksmith, or a hod-carrier, or a humble tiller of the soil. Now, it is almost needless to say that such ones would never win their way to the great popular heart of the race. He who would get friends and maintain his grip upon the friendship of the masses must show courteous conduct to all classes, whether rich or poor, educated or uneducated, high or low. He can retain self respect and the dignity of his position and rank and yet be truly friendly toward all classes. He is none the less a man for being friendly to all.

3. True friendship is shown by regularity of conduct toward all classes. Some people are very friendly toward a certain person one day and quite the reverse the next day. They act as though they had never seen that person before. When they meet certain ones in private they are quite sociable; but upon seeing them in public they are as mute as a mummy, though having an opportunity to converse with them. Such people do not show themselves to be very friendly in the true sense of the term; nor will they gather around them a host of friends. They are decidedly too irregular in the manifestations of their friendliness.

4. True friendliness is also shown by something besides words. I would not undervalue the worth of a kind word; for a friendly word, spoken at the right time, in the right place, has frequently accomplished much—much more than the person who uttered it conceived. A kind word has won many a person from the path of vice to the way of virtue. It has cheered hundreds of disconsolate hearts that felt they were forsaken by the merry multitude. But, after all, he who would show himself friendly in the truest fashion and most effective manner must get beyond mere words into the power and passion of living deeds. He must not hesitate to put the hand of ready help to the assistance of those who suffer the need of it. When a person is groaning under the burden of crushing distress a pound of lifting is more than a ton of talk. "A friend in need is a friend in deed." There was a man who in trying to cross a stream with his team and wagon got stuck in the mud. He was a stranger to that place and a distance from any house. Soon a man came along who said he was sorry to see him in such a fix and then went on. Another came along and asked the unfortunate man how old he was and what were the ages of his horses and different members of his family. After satisfying his curiosity and expressing a regret that the man had met with such bad luck, he passed on. Presently a third man came along and taking in the situation at a glance he put his shoulder to the wheel and lifted with all his might, as the horses pulled hard, and soon the difficulty was overcome. That was friendliness which bore its fruit in season, and was sweet to the taste.—R. C. H. Wetherbee, in Baptist Weekly.

Mr. Muckle.

The other night Captain Muckle went home intoxicated. After going to bed, he made so many strange noises that Mrs. Muckle became alarmed. Muckle told her that he must have been attacked by brain fever. The poor woman became so badly frightened, that after Muckle sank into a muttering sleep, she made a mustard plaster and put it on the back of his neck. Muckle finally became quiet and Mrs. Muckle sank to sleep, leaving the plaster on her husband's neck. During the night the plaster was displaced, but when Muckle awoke next morning his neck was so sore he could scarcely turn his head. Mrs. Muckle, ashamed of what she had done, was determined not to say anything about the plaster, and fearful that her husband would mention the unskillfully attended application, she sat at the breakfast table with downcast expression.

"This place on my neck hurts like the deuce," said Muckle.

"Strangest thing in the world how this thing happened. I was standing on the corner of the street yesterday afternoon, talking to a gentleman on business, when along came a lumber wagon loaded with lumber. A long board, which I did not happen to notice, stuck out about ten feet behind, and while I was deeply interested, the wagon turned the corner, and the long board came around and scraped the back of my neck. I hope the time will come when the people of Little Rock will arise and denounce such nuisances."

Muckle is a terrible liar, and his wife is losing confidence in him.—Arkansas Traveler.

—There are 557 churches in Philadelphia—a figure which entitles that town to be called "the city of churches" in contradistinction to Brooklyn, and the assessed valuation of this property, according to the official report just published, is $17,000,000. The largest valuation is that of the Roman Catholic Cathedral ($285,000), and the next largest the Jewish Synagogue on Broad street ($220,000). These figures, of course, represent only a percentage of the actual values, but they indicate that religion in its various forms is not an unknown quantity in the city of brotherly love.—N. Y. Times.

—A statistician estimates that the people of the United States have to pay twenty-three dollars a minute for Congress while in session.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

TUESDAY EVENING, NOV. 14, 1882.

TERMS:—The EVENING BULLETIN is published daily, and served free of postage at 6 cents per week; 25 cents per month; 75 cents per three months; $1.50 per six months, and $3 per year, payable in advance.

OF THE EVENING BULLETIN HAS A LARGER CIRCULATION IN THIS CITY, CHESTER AND ABERDEEN, OHIO, THAN ANY OTHER PAPER PUBLISHED IN MAYSVILLE.

The Bean Eater's Revenge or Cock-eye Ben's victory is what some cultured Republicans call it.

The expenses of the Ashland campaign for pay, transportation and subsistence of troops, amounted to $8,000.

Mrs. EDITH HARLAN CHILD, daughter of Justice Harlan, of the Supreme Court, died at Chicago Sunday morning.

WILL E. ENGLISH is said to have decided to contest in congress the election of Hon. Stanton J. Peele from the 7th district.

EX-GOVERNOR HART, alleged to have been elected to congress in the Portsmouth (Ohio) district is to have his seat contested by Mr. Neal.

SECRETARY FOLGER has announced that he will retire from the cabinet as soon as his annual report has been prepared. He should retire to a cave.

MR. BLAINE has announced that he is out of politics and intends to keep out. He was doubtless aided in this conclusion by the result of the late election.

REPORTS from the Tenth district have all been received except from one county and John D. White has a majority of 505. The county not heard from is expected to run the majority up to 1,000.

The German Government has ordered the concentration of troops along the French frontier, in consequence of the projected extensive maneuvers of French cavalry in the eastern provinces.

THERE are rumors of many changes in the New York appointments, and the administration, it is said, proposes to throw off all disguises and turn its friends into the pasture foot loose, during the remaining days of the term.

The proprietor of the Elberon House at Long Branch, where Mr. Garfield's family and suite put up has been heard from by the auditing committee. Although he generously refrained from making any charge for the late President himself, his bill amounts to $1,100, a circumstance which will confirm the public in the opinion that most of those who had any business with Mr. Garfield's last sickness are determined to make the best of their opportunity.

The grand jury of the Boyd circuit court charged by Judge Brown with the investigation of the attack upon the State troops by the mob at Ashland adjourned without having finished their work. Insufficiency of time was assigned as a reason. The necessity of an early and thorough investigation of the affair was mentioned in the report. The Catlettsburg correspondent of the Courier-Journal says: Public sentiment has begun to react here, and many who were loud in the denunciation of the civil authorities and the State troops are now on the side of the law and order. This charge has, in part, been brought about by the whitewashing of the mob by the so-called coroner's inquest, and some of the Ashland papers. There is a determination among our best people that mobs and mob rule must be put down, and the law, though sometimes slow, must be enforced through its proper tribunal.

For and About Women.

Mrs. Rees, of Lapidum, Md., lately set a steel trap to catch hawks. On visiting the trap day before yesterday she found an immense hawk caught by the toes. She endeavored to kill it with a club, but the hawk fought as hard as the woman. It was a quarter of an hour before a well directed blow upon the head killed the hawk. After Mrs. Rees recovered from her prostration she measured her foe and found it to be five feet from tip to tip.

A Philadelphia woman, who called herself an electropathic physician and was noted as a quack, seems to have believed in herself, for she treated herself for a hurt which she had received by falling down stairs, refusing to have a regular practitioner called in, and died through her own unskillfulness.

A woman in Toronto is suing her father-in-law for heavy damages for wrongfully enticing her husband away from her and thus depriving her of his support, and as the bill alleges, "his society, which is very precious to her."

Miss Notebanger has just finished a "difficult" piece of music upon the piano forte. "Beautiful, isn't it?" remarked a young lady. "Yes," replied Fogg. "Splendid exercise. Superior to Indian clubs or dumb-bells, but rather exhausting to a beginner, I should say."

LACONIC—Old epigrammatic conversation (whose author we do not know but to whom we will willingly give credit in case he declares himself) between a clergyman and traveler:

C—I've lost my portmanteau.
T—I pity your grief.
C—My sermons are in it.
T—I pity the thief.
A more modern and altogether more Arkansas way of holding a similar conversation would be:
C—I've lost my demijohn.
T—I pity your grief.
C—My whisky was in it.
T—Let's look for the thief.

ROOF PAINTING.

A Few Plain Facts in Regard to TIN and IRON ROOFS.

Preserve your roofs by having a coat of

ARMSTRONG'S

ELASTIC ROOF PAINT

Applied on them. After ten years test in different cities in the state of Kentucky, Armstrong's Elastic Roof Paint is acknowledged superior to any other in use. It forms a heavy elastic body smooth and glossy; it will not crack or scale, dries quickly and will remain without repainting from 8 to 10 years. This paint will stop all leaks in tin or iron roofs and remain so for many years. It has been applied to many of the best buildings, both public and private, in this state, of which I have testimonials to show from gentlemen whose standing in society and business qualifications makes their opinion and knowledge of its worth, after having tried it for years on their roofs, which of itself is the best of guarantees of its useful and valuable worth to all who have or metal roofs. If you have a leaky or a worn out roof that has decayed from neglect of being properly covered with paint, and it leaks and your thinner has failed to stop the leaks, give my paint a trial, and if I do not stop the leaks entirely there will be no charge made.

I will remain in this city a few days with the view of introducing my Elastic Paint, of which I am the inventor and manufacturer and sole owner. I manufacture but the two kinds, the Black Elastic and the Elastic Brown. Neither of these paint contain any linseed oil in their composition, and both being fire proof when applied on shingles or wood. The Black Elastic can stand more intense heat than any other paint made or known in this country, and is calculated for tin or iron roofs. n2tr LYSANDER B. ARMSTRONG.

Walter Frost was severely burned in the face while playing with gunpowder.

John Shafer, Jr., met with a serious and what came very near being a fatal accident, Friday afternoon. He was working on the new addition to Fred Fleig's ice house, and climbing up too high on the frame work which was only temporarily held in place by a small brace and an eight-penny nail, his weight broke it loose at the bottom, and he fell a distance of twenty feet or more. No bones were broken but he was terribly cut and bruised up, and it will be some time before he is able to handle the saw and hatchet again.

Some travelling sharper has been gulling the citizens of Georgetown into paying one dollar each for tin types of their residences and business houses, promising that the likeness would appear in a "history and directory of Ohio." What fools these mortals be.

The trial of Robert Scott vs. Susan Jacob and Samuel Drago, Jr., for fornication and adultery, was held before Squire F. F. Shaw, Wednesday, and Drago was bound over to court.

Eating a Bouquet.

Oswego Times.

At a hotel in this city Saturday a couple from the country, of Milesian extraction, took seats at the dinner table. Directly after a young couple seated themselves opposite and the young man took a stalk of celery from the dish and commenced eating it. The old lady opposite looked at him a moment with an air of disgust, and then nudged her husband and said, in a stage whisper, "D'y'e moind the black-gard aiting the bokay?"

Pity the Poor Girls.

Chicago Times.

When a young man kisses his girl good-night about 1:30 a. m., he may have nearly a mile to walk before reaching his home and he envies his girl, who he supposes jumps into bed and is fast asleep ten minutes after he leaves the house. He doesn't know that she must first fish seventy-nine hair-pins out of her head, one at a time, and twist her hair up into bits of paper so that it will crimp nicely next day, and that he is in bed snoring before she turns off the gas. If he was aware of this fact, perhaps he would leave earlier.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects a cure does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Jan., 20, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours,

P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callons, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for Illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. 127d.

Given by Lightning.

A Columbia letter to the Charleston (S. C.) News says: About eight o'clock this afternoon, during a heavy thunder-storm, the people of Columbia were startled by a terrific crash which followed a most vivid flash of lightning. They little suspected, however, that the thunderbolt had fallen on the Confederate monument in the State-House grounds, and that the crowning glory of that magnificent work of art, the marble statue of a Confederate soldier, which surmounted it, had toppled from its base and been shattered into fragments. The statue is almost completely demolished. Mr. W. H. Anderson, an old soldier of Jenkins' brigade, who chanced to be looking toward the monument when the thunderbolt fell, says that the whole monument was surrounded by a perfect sheet of flame, and when the crash came the head of the statue instantly fell forward to the ground. When it had reached about half way to the ground, the body swayed for a moment, and then gracefully fell over to the right side of the monument. In falling, the body struck the lower base on the eastern side, driving it out of place by an inch or two. The cannon at the rear of the statue was broken off. The right leg was severed at the skirt of the coat. The hands, which rested on the musket, were broken off, and the left leg was driven into the ground six or eight inches. There is nothing left on the top of the shaft but a fragment of the left leg, which is broken off at the ankle and rests upon the broken stock of the musket. The statue was hurled to the ground with so great a force that where it struck the stone base it was crushed into powder. Many fragments were carried off by curious seekers. The head and hand were deposited in the Secretary of State's office for safe-keeping, and the rest of the statue was placed under the guard of the State-House keeper during the night.

The monument was erected by the South Carolina Monumental Association, composed of ladies, on May 13, 1879. The association was founded in February, 1865, and work was begun in 1869. The total expenses of the enterprise amounted to $11,761.46. The statue surmounting the monument, which was caiseled out of fine Italian marble, cost about $5,000. It will be impossible to replace the statue and repair the other damages for less than this amount, for although the shaft and base still stand they were shaken out of their position, inclining a little to the right, and it may be necessary to take down the monument and re-erect it. Although greatly distressed at the misfortune, the ladies have already determined to go to work and repair the damages. An effort will be made to secure an appropriation from the Legislature, and subscriptions are solicited from all who love the memory of the Confederate dead.

An Incident in Chopin's Travels.

On one occasion, when Chopin had been traveling several days in the slow fashion of the German diligences, he was delighted and surprised on stopping at a small post-house to discover a grand piano-forte in one of the rooms, and still more surprised to find it in tune—thanks probably to the musical taste of the postmaster's family. He sat down instantly and began to improvise in his peculiarly happy manner. One by one the travelers were attracted by the unwonted sweet sounds, one of them even letting his beloved pipe go out in his ecstasy. The postmaster, his wife and two daughters joined the group of listeners. Unmindful of his audience, of the journey, the lapse of time, and everything but the music, Chopin continued to play and his companions to listen in rapt attention. When at last he paused the servant appeared with wine; the host's daughter served the artist first, then the travelers; then the postmaster proposed a cheer for the musician, in which all joined. The women in their gratitude filled the carriage-pockets with the best eatables and wine the house contained, and when at last the artist rose to go his gigantic host seized him in his arms and bore him to the carriage. — Life of Chopin.
